"Hello Folks"

LEAKER'S FARM—It was surely bustling with farmers yesterday afternoon—I was sitting in my office with the million things that were left undone by my two day-breaking trips—suddenly the phone rang—"Send a reporter to Jake Leaker's farm at once, they are here to test."—O. K., he right there—reporters out on missions—all eyes on the—finally located Fitzgerald, Leaker and in the old Leaker's roadster we pounded the road towards Wilton about 1-1/2 miles north of the road that leads to Jake's farm, we saw a half dozen cars—nothing serious we thought—on crowd—we found they were sentinels the same appeared at end of road leading to the farm—when we reached the field was lined with cars—the road packed with them—about three hundred farmers were assembled—AND THE STATE MEN HAD GONE—gone after throwing a "tear gas bomb"—they were seen about a half mile down the road—guess they were holding a conference—they did NOT RETURN—the whole gang of state men left, leaving Dr. Malone ALONE ON THE FIELD—in his car he sat—"Take his picture Baker," the gang shouted—we took it—soon the doctor left the field and the last I saw of him he was standing out in the mud looking at his car—guess he was wondering where his buddies were—why did they desert him?—were they afraid the throwing of the tear gas bomb that drove the farmers' cars, and that the sound of another, might wake them to rest?—NO, not a farmer got rough—they acted like gentlemen—complete order was held throughout—AND NO COWS WERE TESTED—It is time the "Gang" of state men learn that the throwing of tear bombs can do nothing but cause hatred and when that is created—no one knows what might follow—from what I could learn, there was no excuse for the using of the tear gas—Governor Turner should start an investigation and stop this darn foolishness of organized Wall street taking the farmers' cattle at 2-5 their value—if he will investigate he will find that the milk test is better, safer and more reliable—and the farmers will not object—every sensible farmer who knows the facts will laugh at the T. B. Tuberculin test as doing any good—it makes sick cows with stringy milk and the city folks drink the filthy stuff, knowing no better.

AFTER IT WAS OVER—the excitement at Leaker's farm, several farmers came to me—"Baker, why did the Free Press print that story saying that 500 people heard the Governor at West Liberty, there wasn't over 200 there"—how did we know how many were there, the Journal covered the meeting no doubt, and someone sent out the news dispatch saying 500 were there, and naturally one would believe them as telling the truth in a news dispatch that goes over the wire state-wide—"Truth nothing, they tell the truth about you when they reported the trial last September"—that reminded me THEY DIDN'T—then another shouted—"The Journal said 500 was at West Liberty when they knew there was not over 200, and when we had about 3,000 or more at Wilton they wouldn't say a word about it."—YES THAT WAS TRUE, the Journal covered Turner at West Liberty and treated Wilton folks with silent contempt.—Another shouted, "If Turner comes back maybe he wouldn't have 100 next time" Governor Turner could turn this hatred to love, if he would take the wool from his eyes, and get next to the "organized gang" that runs the state for him—this same gang holds the reins on the state senators and representatives in the majority—they are for the farmer before election day, and with Wall street after.

GEE FARMERS—LABORERS—I wouldn't it be tough if we had to slide back into the days of a few months ago when we only had one paper in Muscatine with only ONE SIDE OF THE STORY GOING OUT—Those were the "terrible days"—Keep up your good cooperation, we like it—our circulation is going UP, UP, UP.

CEDAR COUNTY UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Turner Orders Out 2,000 Iowa Guardsmen In 'Cow Test War'

Des Moines And Lee County Farmers Back Up Objectors

About 400 Outsiders To Aid Cedar Co., Farmers

TIPTON, Ia.—(INS)—Three hundred farmers from Des Moines county and about 1-25 from Lee county reached Tipton this afternoon "to back up the Farmers Protective Association which has taken the lead in Cedar county in opposition to the bovine tuberculosis statute. The "reinforcements," as they were termed here, arrived shortly after Cedar county farmers to the number of about 400 held a mass meeting to consider the latest turn of events in their resistance to the "TB" act.

The Cedar county men met on a farm about a mile from Tipton. There was no announcement what their course would be upon the arrival of the militia, if, indeed, their plan of action was decided upon. Some demonstration, however, was anticipated with the first arrival of guardsmen early in the afternoon.

MURDER STILL FUZZLES POLICE

No New Clues Found In Slaying of Yachtsman

HUNTINGTON, N. Y.—(INS)—Denying rumors that an arrest was imminent in the Collins murder case investigation, District Attorney Alexander G. Blue of Suffolk county declared in a conference with the press this morning that the authorities were just as mystified today as they were twelve days ago when police learned of the crime. Blue said no "new leads" have turned up, and he "does not look for a break."

DI Martini interrogated her for four hours last night in the presence of Assistant District Attorney Fred Munder and a stenographer.

Crawfordsville Hurricane Does Damage of $100,000

BURLINGTON, Ia.—(INS)—As the result of a controversy over the redistricting of school divisions here, the municipal welfare league has demanded that the board of education meet its terms within five days, threatening that 200 children may be taken from the schools.

This was the edict of a mass meeting held at North Oak school Monday night, in which about 300 parents took part.

A plan of redistricting submitted by G. W. Brooks, school superintendent, was rejected by the new league, who declared no compromise will be accepted. League officers said if their demands were not met, another mass meeting will be called and children removed from four schools.

Two Persons Killed And Big Property Damage Reported

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ia.—(INS)—The cyclone which laid farm lands to waste and made dozens homeless when it struck around Noble, Crawfordville, and Wayland today had claimed two lives.

Valentine Schaad, 50, living near Wayland was found dead after the storm had demolished his home. Mrs. Rickie Ingram, of Burlington, Ia., the other victim, was visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cherry Holmes when the Holmes house was wrecked. Falling debris struck the woman.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ia.—(INS)—A cyclone which caused more than $100,000 damage struck between Crawfordville and Ainsworth about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Crops were damaged, houses moved off of foundations, autos lifted from the highways, and buildings demolished by the gale. Several persons were reported injured by falling debris.

Prohibition Issue Is Thrust Before Legion

RESOLUTIONS GROUP IS In Favor of Change In Dry Law

DETROIT.—(INS)—The prohibition issue became the paramount question before the thirteenth annual convention of the American Legion early today when the resolutions sub-committee, by a vote of 9 to 7, decided to recommend a modification of the law. It was a sensational victory for the wet.

This decision of the resolutions sub-committee came as a startling surprise to convention leaders, who had expected a dry report. Its action meant the prohibition issue would be submitted to the convention for a direct vote—something the Legion leaders had never anticipated. It marked the greatest parliamentary upset in Legion history.

Call Is Issued
A call was immediately issued for a session of the full resolutions committee, on which every state in the union is represented. High Legion officials informed International News Service that the resolutions committee would support the recommendation of the sub-committee and that the prohibition issue would be thrown onto the floor of the convention with a report favoring its modification.

The full resolutions committee may upset the sub-committee's report but such an outcome is not anticipated. If the full committee (Continued on Page Ten)

RESCUED FLYERS HOMEWARD BOUND

ABOARD MOTORSHIP BEIMORA, EN ROUTE TO EUROPE.—(INS)—Saved from a lingering death in the Atlantic, two German airmen and their Portuguese companion, rescued off the coast of Newfoundland, were homeward bound today.

They were Wilhelm Rody, Christian Johansen and Fernando Costa Vieira, who left Portugal on Sept. 14 on a 3,700-mile flight to New York, but were forced down a thousand miles short of their goal, to drift helplessly for almost a week until sighted by a lookout on this vessel.

Troopers Are Ordered Into Tipton To Enforce Tuberculin Test Laws

INVESTIGATION OF T. B. TEST IS BEING ASKED

20,000 Producers and Consumers Send Turner Petition

DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—Petitions bearing the names of approximately 20,000 producers and consumers of livestock products, asking Gov. Turner to appoint a committee to investigate the testing and disposal of cattle, and asking Secretary of Agriculture Thompson to suspend compulsory testing until the committee has investigated and reported with recommendations, were presented to Governor Turner today by G. B. Miller, president of the Iowa Farmers Union.

More than 90 per cent of the petition signers are farmers living in practically every county in Iowa. Blanket endorsements were also given the petitions by the Union Trades and Labor Assembly in the principal cities of the state.

"We were forced to circulate these petitions during August, the busiest season of the farms and the burden fell upon the shoulders of the farmers themselves," Miller said. "Had fast action not been necessary—had it been possible to circulate these petitions during the slack months—I know there would have been three times the number of petitioners."

"As matters stand I doubt that a larger petition has ever been presented."

Troops Are En Route To Tipton; Turner In Proclamation

TIPTON, Ia.—(INS)—Norman Baker of Muscatine, who has interested himself for months in the Cedar county "TB" fight, reached Tipton during the afternoon and addressed crowds gathered at the county jail and at the railway station.

A crowd had gathered about the jail, where John Achy, was being held. Achy's car struck a veterinarian recently and a parole under which he was then at liberty was revoked.

A crowd of about the same proportions was gathered at the station to witness the arrival of troop trains, none of which had reached Tipton at 2:30 p. m.

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE)
Seventeen hundred men, about one-half the force of the Iowa National Guard, were converging at Tipton, Ia., this afternoon in response to an order by Gov. Dan W. Turner that the armed force of the state establish military rule and enforce law and order in Cedar county.

By proclamation, issued at Des Moines at noon, Gov. Turner declared a state of open defiance to law existing in Cedar county and that the seriousness of the situation, together with the threat of its continuance, demanded the presence of the militia and the institution of martial law.

The disorders in Cedar county grew out of efforts of the state department of agriculture to enforce the bovine tuberculosis act, providing for compulsory testing of Iowa herds and destruction of affected animals.

Orders issued during the night by Adjutant General W. H. Bailey called out 31 guard units from 20 scattered Iowa cities and the first of these reached Tipton early in the afternoon, establishing headquarters at the farm groups which have been encountered at numerous farms visited by the agents.

A spirit of restrained anxiety and expectancy pervaded Tipton and the surrounding country this afternoon. Here and there on the streets were groups of farmers or townspeople discussing the possibilities of the tense situation, but there was no sign of hostility to officials already at the scene.

Hold Mass Meeting
During the forenoon, about 400 Cedar county farmers held a mass meeting on the outskirts of the town, presumably for a discussion of the course they would follow in the future. There was no announcement however, as to what the farmers' attitude will be toward the troops or the state government's determination to forcefully carry out the testing law.

A touch of excitement was furnished by the arrival of an automobile caravan from Des Moines and Lee counties, bearing more than 300 farmers, some of whom termed themselves "reinforcements" and declared they were ready to "back up" the Farmers Protective Association which has been active in the fight on the "T. B." act.

In general, the attitude of the farmers of Cedar county was said to be peaceable. They apparently realized, as one put it, that "we're up against a tough job," in any attempt to resist the state troops.

Statements Made
Still, there were statements of a more defiant nature, as, for instance, that of Ray Chapman, for (Continued on Page Two)

MINUTE MEN OF CEDAR COUNTY BALK TESTERS

Lenker Farm Is Scene Of Anti-Test Meet On Monday

Press dispatches which state that state veterinarians and assistants were attacked and beat yesterday by farmers gathered at the Jake Lenker farm, 14 miles south of Tipton, to resist the testing of the Lenker cattle today were termed "grossly exaggerated" by the farmers themselves. At no time was any member of the state posse really attacked or even threatened and it was not until the invading state officials resorted to the use of tear gas bombs with the result that one farmer was rendered unconscious and several others slightly injured was there anything but peaceable resistance. During the excitement occasioned by the testing of the cattle, several of the state men were slapped by friends of the injured farmers but none received bruises and cuts as stated in press dispatches.

Farmers stated today that Governor Dan Turner was greatly misinformed as to what actually happened yesterday at the Lenker farm and are of the opinion that if the state's chief executive had been an eye witness he would know there was and is no necessity for the troops being in Cedar county.

The governor's action in sending the state militia to Cedar county at the request of prejudiced persons is being likened today to the trouble in the Colorado coal fields some years ago when federal troops were sent into the fields by the president at the request of the Colorado governor, who grossly misrepresented the facts, it was later learned.

Norman Baker of Muscatine, who has been and is a staunch defender of the farmers in the fight for their rights in resisting the testing of their cattle, today wired the facts of the case to Governor Turner at Washington, D. C., and asked the chief executive to withdraw the troops from Cedar county.

Paul Revere, who summoned a Colonial army during Revolutionary days, wasn't able to congregated the staunch supporters of truth, liberty, justice and equal taxation—just the same as the "Minute Men of Cedar County" gathered Monday afternoon at the J. W. Lenker farm near Wilton when an effort was made to apply the bovine T. B. test to cattle there. Paul, so history tells us, called his men "grape-vine telegraph."

At about 3 p. m. Monday between 50 and 60 employees of the state arrived at the Lenker farm, and about the same time some 400 farmers, summoned from far and near arrived also. The net result was that the armed crew which came into the lower end of Cedar county to test Mr. Lenker's cattle returned to Tipton without having accomplished its mission.

Baker There Too
Included among those who learned of the disturbance at the Lenker farm was Norman Baker of Muscatine, in whom the Cedar county farmers have, perhaps, more confidence and faith than any other man. Mr. Baker called a Press reporter and the two, together with W. C. Carpenter of the Free Press, who has accompanied the former on many of his engagements to speak throughout the state, left Muscatine for Cedar county.

The trip was made in Mr. Baker's lavender colored convertible Franklin coupe. Time was too short to notice what hour the party left Muscatine, but throughout the trip the speedometer hovered between 60 and 70 miles an hour. The recent rains had made the roads in some places, difficult to drive over and (Continued on Page Ten)

CEDAR COUNTY PLACED UNDER STATE TROOPS

Turner Orders Out
2,000 Guardsmen
To Scene

mer president of the Cedar county farmers union: "My father fought in the Civil War. I'm not afraid to die for a principle. We don't blame the militia. They were ordered here regardless of their own wishes. I'm afraid somebody is going to get hurt. My cattle have not been tested and they aren't going to be."

Jack Lenker, president of the Farmers Protective association, at whose farm several state agents were roughly handled yesterday, stated: "They'll test my cattle only over my dead body."

Paul Moore, fiery secretary of the Protective association was less defiant.

"One human life is worth more than all the cattle in the world," was his indirect comment on the danger of the situation.

Excitement is rampant. Excited discussion of developments was found everywhere in the disturbed zone. Townspeople appeared on the whole, to be relieved at the knowledge that guardsmen were at last on their way to quell the outbreaks which have occurred regularly for months when state agents attempted to proceed with the tests.

A handful of guard officers, including Gen. Park Findley of Des Moines, who will be in charge of the militia operations, reached Tipton early in the day.

Scarcely a farmer but deserted his fields to mill with the expectant crowds in Tipton or to attend the hastily called meeting of farmers.

The high point of the day came with the arrival of troop trains. After the guardsmen are settled in their camp, the policy to be pursued will be determined by the commanding officers and the force of state agents who have spent the day marking time and planning the renewal of testing activities under the protection of the troops. The testing work is generally expected to be resumed tomorrow.

At the state house in Des Moines, officials concerned expressed the belief that the guard would be kept in Cedar county until all testing work had been completed. This may take a week or possibly longer, since several days are required to determine reactors among the herds.

The proclamation of Governor Turner, who was in Washington when the trouble reached an acute stage, was telephoned to his office at the capital and immediately issued to General Bailey, who transmitted it, directly to General Findley at Tipton.

Governor Outlines Situation

The governor briefly outlined the Cedar county situation, declaring defiance to law existed, that the situation was beyond the control of local authorities and reaffirming his determination to enforce the "T. B." law, as well as prevent violence.

"The dignity and authority of the state will be maintained, and her power to suppress all lawlessness within her border will be asserted," the governor declared.

Coincident with the turn to force on the part of the state, another protest against the "T. B." act formally was placed before the governor today. It is a protest, said to carry the names of 20,000 producers and consumers of livestock, against the present testing methods, and a request that the testing work be suspended until an investigation of the method has been made and recommendations submitted for a change.

Note Sent to Governor

The communication was sent the governor by C. B. Miller, president of the Iowa Farmers Union, who claimed the signers represented virtually every county in the state.

It is known that suspension of the act has been advocated before the governor by other interests recently, but it might be pointed out, no emergency permits him to abrogate such an act.

Gov. Turner left Washington this afternoon and will reach Des Moines late tomorrow.

Before leaving the capital, he reaffirmed his intention to "rigidly enforce the law," and added that if there is further trouble in Cedar county, he will "declare a state of insurrection" in the county, under which all gatherings except church services, would be prohibited.

DES. MOINES, Ia., (INS)— A proclamation by Governor Dan Turner declaring a state of martial law in Cedar county ordering the national guard into the county to restore and enforce law and order was issued shortly before noon today.

The text of the proclamation follows: There now exists in Cedar county in this state a breach of the peace and imminent danger of a continuance thereof, and open defiance of law enforcement by certain groups and individuals. The department of agriculture, civil authorities, and local peace officers are unable to enforce the laws and have requested military aid to reestablish peace, restore law and order, protect public and private property and to protect civil officers in the administration of the laws of this state by civil officers and are threatening and doing physical violence to said officers. The situation grows more serious each day. The territory involved requires the presence of the military forces of this state in order to maintain the public peace and to prevent breaches of peace and to reestablish law and order and to aid in the enforcement of the law in Cedar county.

The Adjutant General, Brigadier

Minor Accidents Reported Monday To Local Police

Three accidents of a minor nature were reported Monday to the local police.

A milk truck operated by Joe Taylor, was damaged to the extent of about $25 when it collided with a Scott car on the corner of Main street and Second street, Monday afternoon.

A coupe driven by Harold Froehner and a touring car operated by Joe Thomas, were both damaged in a collision Monday afternoon on East Sixth street.

Robert Brockman, 515 East Third street, reported to the police that he was knocked from his bicycle at Second street and Iowa avenue Monday when he was hit by a car driven by a colored man. The bicycle was damaged.

General Winfred H. Bailey will place troops on duty in Cedar county, distributing them to various localities as will render them most effective for preserving the public peace and enforcing law and order. He will protect any and all properties, officers, and men from unlawful interference, and will arrest all persons engaging in acts of violence, intimidation, and interference with the enforcement of the law. He will prevent the assembling and loitering of persons when in his judgment the same is necessary. The public peace and good order will be preserved upon all occasions and throughout the county and no interference will be permitted with officers and men in the discharge of their duties under this order.

The dignity and authority of the state will be maintained and her power to suppress all lawlessness within her border must and will be asserted.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and the seal of the state of Iowa.

Done at Des Moines, Ia., this twenty-second day of September A. D. 1931.

Dan W. Turner, governor and commander in chief.

Attest: C. C. Greenwalt, secretary of state.

TIPTON, Ia., (INS)—The first state troop unit scheduled to arrive at the scene of the "cow testing war" was the 133rd Infantry. This unit is made up of men from Fort Dodge, Webster City, Waterloo, Mason City and Cedar Rapids. It was to reach Tipton at noon today, on a special Rock Island train.

Des Moines and Council Bluffs guardsmen were slated to reach Tipton about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The troops are to be stationed at the fair grounds in Tipton.

when farmers refused to permit testing at the T. E. Mitchell farm. Twenty state agents and a host of deputies were ejected from the William Buttergott farm, near Tipton during the same month when state testers tried to take tests there.

Meeting Is 'Fizzle'

In April Gov. Turner met with the farmers at Iowa City in an effort to reach a peaceful settlement of the problem. The meeting, however, was more or less a failure although at that time Gov. Turner insisted that the law must be enforced. A fight also has been carried on by the farmers through the courts during the period since last March but the supreme court of Iowa has upheld the law in every case. While the U. S. supreme court dismissed the case when it held that the question did not come under that body's jurisdiction.

More than 1,000 farmers stormed the legislature last winter in an attempt to influence the general assembly toward the repeal of the act, but this was also a failure.

Since the dismissal of the case from the supreme court of the United States all had been quiet except for a few skirmishes until last month. On Aug. 5, F. O. Billson issued an injunction restraining farmers from preventing the test. A fortnight later the veterinarians were refusing permission to test the cattle of Arthur Fogg, William Buttergott, and William Hogan. The trio were cited for contempt. Fogg pleaded guilty and was fined $50. The other two pleaded not guilty and their cases have not yet been settled. They are free under $500 bonds.

Residents of Tipton said today that they welcomed the action of Gov. Turner yesterday in sending troops to Cedar county. Many of them declared that it is their belief that such action should have been taken last month when opposition was shown at the Mitchell farm. The attitude of the townspeople is attributed to the action that has cropped out against the business men by farmers who claim the townsmen have refused to sign petitions against the law.

Business, according to the merchants, has been seriously effected and probably will continue to be until the thing is settled.

Merchant Gives View

An example of the tradition was cited by one of the merchants. "A woman came into my store yesterday morning," he said. "She gave me an order for some goods. As I was wrapping up her purchase she asked me if I had signed the petition. I told her I had not. The woman declared that she would not buy from me. I tried to explain that I wanted to maintain a neutral position but she said that her husband had ordered her not to buy anything from any merchant who would not sign the petition."

The merchants refused to sign the petition because they feel that but few of the Cedar county farmers were opposed to the law in the beginning. They explained that the Cedar county farmers have been agitated by Muscatine and Scott county farmers to the point of offering open resistance.

There are approximately 1700 farmers in Cedar county. Over half of them have joined in the fight against the law through the courts. Their trading in the stores is a great share of the entire business of Tipton. One merchant pointed out this morning that two banks have failed here and one railroad has discontinued service to the town since the trouble began. He would not state whether he believed the trouble had brought about this result.

This is the first time that the state has had to call on its national guard since 1921 when they were sent to Ottumwa for the packer strike there and only the third time in the history of the organization that it has been called.

Trouble between authorities and farmers over the enforcement of the tuberculosis law began last March.

SCHOOL FUNDS ARE PROTECTED

Remaining Banks Act
To Insure Against Loss to Pupils

Savings of school children deposited in the American Savings bank which failed to open Monday morning and amounting to $3,400, will be fully protected by action of the three remaining banks, the Hersey State bank, the First National bank and the First Trust and Savings bank in taking over and guaranteeing dollar for dollar, the deposits of all school children.

Henry Van Hettina, city school superintendent, today announced a plan for pupils who formerly patronized the American Savings bank. Cards will be issued on which each pupil should designate his newly chosen bank, and also the amount of the deposit.

Can Choose Own Bank

As soon as the examiner in charge of the American Savings bank certificates to the amount of the deposit to each pupil, and when each pupil has properly assigned his deposit in the American Savings bank to the newly selected bank, he will have in the new bank an amount equivalent to that which he has on deposit in the closed bank, plus the amount banked each succeeding Tuesday.

The decision of the three remaining banks in guaranteeing that no loss will be suffered by the school pupils has proven gratifying to local school officials.

Action Is Commended

Superintendent Van Hettina commented as follows upon the action taken by the three banks:

"No more worth while action could be taken by the officers of the three banks, than to guarantee against any loss of school savings money deposited in the American Savings bank."

"It has a long and tedious task of the school personnel to build up a credit department in the public schools."

"During the past school year an average of 81 per cent of all the pupils in the school system made a small weekly deposit until the total amount on deposit approximates $24,000."

"The action of the banks should maintain the high standard of confidence which the pupils have in our school savings system."

when farmers refused to permit testing at the T. E. Mitchell farm. Twenty state agents and a host of deputies were ejected from the William Buttergott farm, near Tipton during the same month when state testers tried to take tests there.

Meeting Is 'Fizzle'

In April Gov. Turner met with the farmers at Iowa City in an effort to reach a peaceful settlement of the problem. The meeting, however, was more or less a failure although at that time Gov. Turner insisted that the law must be enforced. A fight also has been carried on by the farmers through the courts during the period since last March but the supreme court of Iowa has upheld the law in every case. While the U. S. supreme court dismissed the case when it held that the question did not come under that body's jurisdiction.

More than 1,000 farmers stormed the legislature last winter in an attempt to influence the general assembly toward the repeal of the act, but this was also a failure.

Since the dismissal of the case from the supreme court of the United States all had been quiet except for a few skirmishes until last month. On Aug. 5, F. O. Billson issued an injunction restraining farmers from preventing the test. A fortnight later the veterinarians were refusing permission to test the cattle of Arthur Fogg, William Buttergott, and William Hogan. The trio were cited for contempt. Fogg pleaded guilty and was fined $50. The other two pleaded not guilty and their cases have not yet been settled. They are free under $500 bonds.

Residents of Tipton said today that they welcomed the action of Gov. Turner yesterday in sending troops to Cedar county. Many of them declared that it is their belief that such action should have been taken last month when opposition was shown at the Mitchell farm. The attitude of the townspeople is attributed to the action that has cropped out against the business men by farmers who claim the townsmen have refused to sign petitions against the law.

Business, according to the merchants, has been seriously effected and probably will continue to be until the thing is settled.

Merchant Gives View

An example of the tradition was cited by one of the merchants. "A woman came into my store yesterday morning," he said. "She gave me an order for some goods. As I was wrapping up her purchase she asked me if I had signed the petition. I told her I had not. The woman declared that she would not buy from me. I tried to explain that I wanted to maintain a neutral position but she said that her husband had ordered her not to buy anything from any merchant who would not sign the petition."

The merchants refused to sign the petition because they feel that but few of the Cedar county farmers were opposed to the law in the beginning. They explained that the Cedar county farmers have been agitated by Muscatine and Scott county farmers to the point of offering open resistance.

There are approximately 1700 farmers in Cedar county. Over half of them have joined in the fight against the law through the courts. Their trading in the stores is a great share of the entire business of Tipton. One merchant pointed out this morning that two banks have failed here and one railroad has discontinued service to the town since the trouble began. He would not state whether he believed the trouble had brought about this result.

SEBELEIN GETS FINE OF $300

Herman Sebelein, of near Durant, who pleaded not guilty this morning to a charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance, changed his plea this afternoon and was fined $300 and sentenced to serve three months in the county jail. He paid the fine and the jail sentence was suspended pending his good behavior. He was paroled to Attorney C. P. Hanley, who represented him in court.

MAXIM STILLS NOISE

NEW YORK (INS)—Perfection of noise exterminator was the reward of Hiram P. Maxim, 62-year-old inventor, today for 12 years of hard work. Maxim, a former manufacturer of silencers for rifles, who lives in Hartford, Conn., obtained the inspiration for his latest invention while staying at a hotel in Milwaukee in 1923. It was then that he decided noise was man's worst enemy. The new device is nothing more than a metal box which by placing it on window shutters out all street noises and filters the air coming into the room. Every two minutes the air is charged thereby causing a fresh current to circulate through the room and lowering the temperature in hot weather.

Proposal of a central trunk road to open up Wales is receiving great favor in that country. The road would start at Cardiff and continue to the north coast, passing through the east and west. Those backing the plan say that the road would help restore the balance of population and provide work for 600,000 men as well as help agriculture, the woolen industry, lead mining and quarrying.

TURNER HEARD BY ABOUT 200, AVER FARMERS

Many Present Say
Audience Was Less
Than 500

At his recent speech in West Liberty, Governor Dan Turner was heard by nearer 200 than 500 persons, according to farmers who said they attended the gathering. News dispatches which came over the wire said there was a crowd of 500 at the meeting.

A reporter who mingled with the farmers at the J. W. Lenker farm near Wilton Monday, when efforts to apply the bovine T. B. test, to cattle there were repulsed, came in for his share of criticism because the Free Press in publishing an account of the meeting, said there were 500 at the meeting.

It was explained that this paper did not have a reporter at the meeting and the only account it received came over the news service wires.

The previous record was four descents in an hour. Trautman landed every time within thirty yards of the center of the airfield.

"That bully old slogan hits me just right—

... no bamboozlin' about that!"

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neither raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobacco, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!

Little Arab Baby Makes Hit During Formal Visit in Paris

By ALICE LANGELEIR

PARIS—(INS)—A little Arab baby has recently been the center of attraction in Paris. He is Moulay ben Hassan, the two-year-old son of the young Sultan of Morocco who has been making a formal visit to the French capital.

Little Moulay ben Hassan looks much older than his twenty-four months, whether wearing his pretty little white silk and wool dandourah and little red fez, in true Moroccan fashion, or his tiny blue suit which his nurse bought for him in a fashionable French shop.

And he already seems to know what is expected of the son of a popular sovereign. The other day he was seen on the big verandah of the Hotel de Crillon, where he was stopping, blowing kisses to the crowd waiting for the arrival of his handsome father. At once he became popular with the French. He was followed by the French, monstrosities of his French nurse, Mademoiselle Henrietta Espagnet, he would wander around to all the tables, holding out his little hand for an affectionate handshake. He was the idol of the moment at the Colonial Exposition Zoo and came home to tell his august father that he had played with a lion!

One of the Sultan's most important presents received during his journey here was a whole ox presented by the people of the great markets. But his pleasure over the big animal was nothing compared to that of the shy, round-eyed ecstasy of little Moulay—that he received. Now, everywhere that he goes, this goat is bound to follow.

Little Moulay had a whole room full of fine toys at the hotel, including an electric train presented him by the City of Paris. But what he seemed to love best was the little balloon he bought himself in the gardens of the Tuilleries where he went to play every day that he wasn't kept busy by receptions with President Doumer and other big personages.

The Sultan too, took away with him any number of important purchases made in Paris, silk scarves of finest texture, gorgeous pyjamas and fine French perfumes. His most important purchase was a little 5-h. p. car which he intends to use within his extensive palace grounds.

"Don't worry!" This is the main message delivered to would-be youthful French women by America's evergreen flapper, Edna Wallace Hopper who is now taking her annual "cure" in Vichy. "Worry will kill you every time," warns Miss Hopper, "which means, of course that it will make you look

Swim Suits Still Skimpy as Well As Multi Colored

By ALICE LANGELEIR

PARIS—(INS)—Suits in the swim from Deauville to the Basque coast and all along the sunny Riviera are strikingly skimpy, as well as simply striking.

They come mostly in very fine jersey or flannel in a large number of color combinations. One of the most striking seen at Le Touquet this summer is almost entirely sans back and comes in white jersey with the monogram in bright scarlet matching the bands at the neck. Shorts of the same bright scarlet, button on to a short sleeveless bolero of white flannel trimmed with scarlet.

Navy and white jersey make another skimpy striking suit with the front vest in white and wide shoulder straps extending to the waist in back.

Mary Nowitzky is showing bathing suits in lovely shades of almond-green, orange and mauve. They all have beach-coats. One in red flannel seen at Deauville is cut on Dicoire lines, with fitted waist and velvet revers. Another in loveliest fuchsia shade is combined with brown and almond-green.

A striking suit in cream flannel has the belt in emerald-green to match the wrap-around skirt and sleeveless Eton coat. There are also green embroidered motifs.

they are ingeniously made shadow-proof by incrustated panels or wrap-around arrangements. 'Cause wool crepes are very, very thin, my dears, 'n' satin crepes often are much more transparent than one suspects—and Fashion, whether just for Fashion or because of a return of Victorian modesty, has decreed that to be fashionable one must be opaque!

But—Evening Lingerie

AKES another course. It's frivolous, lacy, adorable! Finesatin is used for slips and nighties, and applied not just in spots, but all over, with dark, exquisite lace! Crisply rustling taffeta is used for wide evening petticoats, with rows of rows of taffeta ruffles, and these ruffles are generally lace edged. 'N' panties and brassieres are as tiny as they can possibly be, and either entirely of lace or so lace trimmed that they appear to be. Ladies who are lovely after dark demand lingerie as lovely as their gowns!

BLACK astrakhan sort of DARES couturiers to commit their most original designs this Autumn. It's a bold sort of fur, and enters upon unusual treatments in a very effective way. The coat I sketch for you today, to which the astrakhan is 'hitched' as it were, is of black suede cloth, with the shoulders and sleeves cut in one piece for breadth, and very distinctive incrustations on the coat body and skirt. 'N' the astrakhan is put on in wide bands about the elbow, and in a squarish yoke that melts into an understating ruff collar.

AND a little jacket of black incrustations and bright silver buttons, uses a flat cravat collar of black astrakhan and fitted cuffs with tier.

YOU can buy a really wonderful quality of astrakhan for very little money, comparatively, these days, so why not buy yours in some different and different form?

THE LOVE MASQUE By Barbara Webb

CHAPTER XXI
A Narrow Escape

A WEEK passed and still Phyllis woke each morning with the feeling that something was about to happen. Nothing out of the ordinary had happened, but the feeling, instead of being dulled, persisted, until the girl found herself living in a state of high tension. Mrs. Hatton, too, continued to be nervous and jumpy and she encouraged Phyllis to stay away from social affairs to which they had been invited.

"A little rest will do you good, Phyllis," she proclaimed in the fretful tone she used nowadays, "and so not going every place will help to establish you as being exclusive. You've made a good start by being friendly to every one, now you ought to try being selective for a while."

Phyllis looked at her curiously. "Is that the real reason why you want me to refuse these invitations, Aunt Naomi?"

"Of course it is," came the sharp answer; "you know very well that every move you make socially is dictated by my experience and Letty's. What other reason could I possibly have?"

"Oh, I don't know," Phyllis was silent, but she had a shrewd idea that some climax was approaching and that it served Mrs. Hatton's purposes best for her ward to be seen about very little at present.

That afternoon she wandered into the morning room where Letty did her work and surprised the social secretary at the writing of a voluminous diary, in a fat red book with many pages filled with Letty's fine Spencerian handwriting.

"Chronicle all your love affairs!" Phyllis asked lightly.

"No—there have never been any to chronicle," Letty's voice was sad and Phyllis felt suddenly sorry for her. "I'm writing in here every detail of your daily life for you, in case it interests you."

"Keeping a diary for me!" Phyllis

Autumn Gowns Reminiscent of Grandma's Day

By ALICE LANGELEIR

PARIS—(INS)—Pert and piquant are feminine modes for autumn and winter alluringly romantic and reminiscent of the days of our grandmothers.

But now that the first big fashion flurrie are over, one is comfortably assured that the silhouette is not dangerously changed and that there are really only suggestions of bustles and crinolines on frocks that must be worn in suburbs and street cars instead of fine coaches and carriages.

Husbands will have something to murmur about the day dresses with skin-tight bodices which fasten down the back with a few dozen closely set buttons. When they are worn with prim little fur capes and round muffs to match the little caps worn at a jaunty forward tilt, grandmothers' portraits when a child immediately comes to life.

Puff sleeves and puffed elbows with the old-fashioned oblong silk-covered button, woolen frocks with rows of tucks on the skirts, coats with capes trimmed with bands of fur, a tight-fitting packet with the front and flared basque trimmed with bands of fur and a stand-up collar, are more biquant period effects.

A quaint pinafore decolletee comes on an evening gown with stiffened epaulettes and lace yoke inset in the square neckline. There are little capes and capelettes, fur yokes made in one with the high collar of fur and rows of frills in fantastic movements.

When the hands become hard and roughened, soak them in warm water and while they are still wet rub in olive oil until the skin has absorbed as much of it as it will, then dry the hands thoroughly.

WHY NOT EFFICIENCY IN YOUR HOME

Is your home as modern as your husband's factory or office?

The last fifty years has brought forth fast and efficient machinery to replace the old hand methods—but many homes have not kept pace with this development.

Too often the housewife is still following the inconvenient and tiresome methods of the past even though science has given her the way to modernize her home.

ILLINOIS WILL MEET ST. LOUIS IN FIRST GAME

Illinois Will Be Given Experience Against Irish System

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(INS)—When St. Louis invades the Illinois stadium October 1 in the season opener for the Illini, it will be the first time the two teams have ever met. The game will give Illinois experience against the Notre Dame system which they will meet the following week at Purdue. Boy Scouts from all parts of the state will be the guests of honor at the St. Louis game.

An Illinois victory over Michigan in the homecoming game in the Illinois stadium October 24 would even the score between the Wolverines and Zuppke-coached teams. Before Zupp came to Illinois, Michigan won all of the five games played between the teams. Since that date Michigan has won six and Illinois five.

REUNION TO BE ANNUAL EVENT

Speakers at Company C. Banquet See End Of Depression

Decision to make the reunion of war veterans, an annual event, was reached Monday afternoon when the surviving veterans of the regiment met at the Grand hotel in the only business session of one of the three-day gatherings that concluded today. Following a banquet held Monday night at the Elks home, the company adjourned to meet again on Sept. 21, 1932.

Reminiscences of the days in 1898 when Company C. answered the call of war, an annual event, was heard at the banquet session which was attended by close to 100 veterans and their wives. Because of rain, the military parade and band concert, which were to have preceded the banquet, were cancelled.

Rev. Randall Speaker

The Rev. J. B. Randall, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, as principal speaker, at the banquet, predicted that the crisis which the United States is now passing through, and the business depression will be fully overcome. He declared that the United States will lead the world out of its chaotic condition through the force and power of men of moral integrity such as Washington and Lincoln. The speaker decried the lack of reverence which formerly existed and predicted that prosperity will again be here, but only through the leadership of men of high honor and power. The same thoughts were expressed in an address by Mayor H. G. Thompson, who declared that the present business depression is only a temporary one. Other speakers were the Rev. Leland Leshar, pastor of the Grace English Lutheran church, and Dr. Wallace Longstreth of Kansas City, Mo.

Burlington Man Presides

Ed Erb, Burlington, Ia., acted as toastmaster at the banquet. The roll call was read by William Schoenig and his request for information regarding absent members, revealed that many had passed away since the last meeting of the company which was 33 years ago. A letter from Judge D. V. Jackson of Muscatine, who was colonel of the regiment, expressed his regret at being unable to attend the banquet. Judge Jackson is at present conducting court at Maquoketa.

Statistics presented at the banquet by the Rev. Mr. Randall, revealed that of all the men who answered the call in 1898, every one was a volunteer. The average term of service was 14 months, as compared to 11 months in the Civil war and 9 months in the World war.

The convention came to a close this afternoon with a story of the veterans at a cottage along the Cedar river and a reception and sight-seeing trip for wives of the members.

SANE PATIENTS JAILED, CHARGE

Letter Demands That Governor Assure Proper Trials

CHICAGO, Ill.—Charges that patients are being "railroaded" through the psychopathic hospital to insane asylums were hurled in an open letter addressed to Governor Louis Emmerson by Mrs. Helene Joseph, president of the Taxpayers and Voters' League. The letter stated that a private investigation showed that practically all cases at the Cook county hospital are handled by "third rate physicians as alienists." Individuals, the letter stated are held incommunicado, under lock and key, and forced to a trial without a shadow of a chance for defense.

Demand Fair Trials

Fourteen recommendations were made to the governor to correct the alleged abuses that a "superintendent, not a doctor, should go through the wards of the state hospitals once a week and hear any complaints the patients have to make."

Other suggestions were: "Persons taken to the psychopathic hospital should have a fair trial, have witnesses and counsel, and be given time to explain anything that may seem out of the ordinary to the complainant, who should be compelled by law to attend the trials, mail of patients in hospitals should not be tampered with, and a small wage should be paid patients who are willing and able to work."

It is further recommended in the letter, that a board of appeals should be set up to meet every six months in each institution where all complaints and suggestions of the patients and personnel may be thoroughly aired and corrected. Where possible, with the assurance that any complaints may be made without fear of punishment.

The letter charges that the overcrowding in state hospitals is partly due to judges being misled and physicians by alienists who are "third rate physicians only."

The All-American Football Team for 1931, Hand Picked, In Advance, By Noted Writer

By JONATHAN BROOKS
Noted Sports Fiction Writer
(Written Expressly for International News Service)

It is time somebody put this All-American Football Team on an efficiency basis. The thing is all wrong. Every football player in America (119,487) suffers myriad pains each season, in anguish as to whether the experts (92,617-008) will put him on the All-American. It is only humane to reduce this anguish and absurdity, because there is plenty of other anguish in football without this uncertainty.

It is silly to name an All-American team in December when the season is ended and there is no more football to be played except in California. And who wants to play football in California, with the big toughies they raise out there? An All-American Eleven December is about as useful as an ice pick in the Gobi! What football needs is utility.

The solution is simple. We are surprised nobody has thought of it sooner. Why should it have been left to us, who do not pose as football experts except when we can get away with it, to solve this problem? That is the real trouble with the United States today. People simply will not think, in time!

With one bold, forceful stroke, we remove one of the keenest agonies from 1931 football, and put the All-American on a paying basis. We name our 1931 All-American in ADVANCE of the season's play! We prevent thousands of boys from playing with one eye on the press-box, and we add to the box-office receipts of eleven universities by giving them bonafide All-Americans as drawing cards. (Just as bonafide as any. Walter Camp once asked us if McCaw was a good guard, and we said McCaw was a good guard. If that doesn't qualify us,—) And the way salaries run nowadays, gate receipts are badly needed.

Precedent is with us. The Saturday Evening Post comes out on Tuesday now, instead of Thursday; next week's Collier's comes out last week, or so. Certainly, precedent—let's say, too. We select our All-American right now, for 1931.

All-American for 1931
Center—Indiana U. Band drum major.
Right guard—Grabner, of Princeton.
Right tackle—Father Lumpkin, of Ga. or Ga. Tech.
Right end—Fessler, of Ohio State.
Quarterback—Clark, of Illinois.
Right half—Riegels, of California.
Fullback—Salmon, of Notre Dame.
Coach—Bingham, of Harvard.
Honorable mention—Booth, of Yale, the basketball star.
Booth, the Yale baseball luminary.
Booth, Yale's football team; Booth of Yale.

These selections require no argument. But some smartaleck is always sticking his head up to yuck at his better ideas, so let's go ahead and argue. Take dignity, for example—where is a team with the dignity supplied by a man with a name like Father Lumpkin? We're not sure whether he played at Ga. or was a heliump engineer. But he certainly lends dignity, which is the first thing an All-American Eleven requires.

Team Is Democratic
This eleven is democratic. It gives the small college a run for its money, if any, which is doubtful. How? Well, Christian Brothers has (or have?) never been represented

Florida Horse and Dog Racing Up to Referendums Now

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—(INS)—Horse and dog racing will flourish in Florida if referendums in fifteen counties approve the operation of race tracks. The commission for the operation of fifteen horse race tracks and twenty-one dog tracks have been approved by the state racing commission, it was revealed here. The commission denied five applications for horse tracks and 13 applications for dog tracks. The commission was created by the last session of the legislature which legalized racing and pari-mutuel betting subject to referendums by the counties in which racing is proposed to be held.

SMALLEST CIRCUS-FLEAS
BLACKPOOL, Eng.—(INS)—The world's smallest circus is here. The artists, who performed on the tightrope and pull microscopic carriages and cannons, are a company of fifty trained fleas, from a German flea farm. Guaranteeing that to escape amongst the audience, the insects do many things at the word of command from the human ringmaster, who refuses to reveal the secret of how he trained his charges.

can't overlook heredity, but if you do, be careful about environment! Our 1931 All-American draws steadiness from two married men; solid, oldstyle attack from Salmon; defense from Fessler; and a sympathetic public reaction from the Christian brothers starter. Fighting spirit will come from the drum major.

We've solved the problem. This 1931 All-American, is the best possible team, geographically, financially, ethnologically, etc. And you get it in advance, like theater tickets BUT at no added cost! With Grabner as captain and Bingham of Harvard as coach, we'll have a good business administration... You boys get in there now, and give 'em everything you've got, and if that ain't enough,—it, give 'em some more!

Regels Good Runner
Everybody knows that running the ball is the thing Riegels does best. Or best and worst. Well, make it best and aggregate, then, and penalize his ball—never mind. But it IS hard to keep the thoughts off the great national game in this weather. You get distance on a drive, nowadays.

Feeler of Ohio State plays both ends. No, he is not twins. Rather, he is twins for everybody that played Ohio said this bird plays both ends and the whole defensive backfield. He would just as soon play two ends, and why ride, feed and uniform two men when you can get by with one?

That brings us to the biggest problem in football—how to keep upkeep down! So we explain two more choices. Grabner sold more bonds last summer than any four r.g.'s in New York, despite market conditions which continue that way but promise well. He is heeled and can afford to play for fun. He is ambitious, and will work for nothing. Publicity will be his pay. Selfishness is the divine spark in football, as in everything else. Give us Grabner!

Red Salmon Economical
Red Salmon also will be economical. Listen, Canton's Bulldogs put one over (yeah?) on Massillon's Tigers, by hiring Bill Heaston for $600-odd. But Red came from Notre-Dame at $25 per week, and what did he do? Gained 80 pounds yds. through the line, and beat the Bulldogs, Salmon going to—what if it WAS thirty-four years ago When better fullbacks are built, Notre Dame will build 'em.

The money we save on Grabner and Salmon will come in handy. Both our tackles, Nagurski and Lumpkin are married and they can't dress wives on the pay of single men. But wait—a married man is more valuable to an All-American team than a single man. If a bachelor gets sore, he can quit an hitchhike to another job, but a married man, with the little wife waiting for the dough, is good sticks! Turnover in labor is expensive—in the ordinary All-American, the turnover is 100 per cent a year! Think of that—efficiency! But our All-American can serve, intact, for 1932, '33 and maybe even '34.

Dally Left Guard
We're now down to left guard. There has to be a left guard, to make eleven. Think of that. We choose Joe Dally J., of Harvard. It was a toss-up between Booth, of Yale, and Harvard for this job, and it is easier to toss Harvard these days than it is Yale—or is it? Take your choice. But before you throw out Joe Dally 3rd, remember Joe's father and grandfather both played All-American; and if he had a great-grandfather, he undoubtedly would have made the team. You

France Is Somewhat Uneasy Over Relations With U. S.

French Premier Plans To Make a Visit to United States

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
WASHINGTON—(INS)—France is somewhat uneasy over the cordiality of her relations with the United States.

This, briefly, is understood in Washington to be the underlying motive for the projected American visit of the French premier, Pierre Laval. He is expected in Washington within the next sixty days for a series of conferences with administration officials on current world problems.

He will come at the invitation of President Hoover, of course. But behind that invitation is a story of growing French concern over what she discerns to be diminishing French popularity in the United States. It is true that Mr. Hoover invited the French premier, but it is also true that Mr. Hoover was virtually invited to do the inviting.

It was hinted some weeks ago, in the delicate way that diplomacy conveys such things, that the French premier would welcome an invitation to visit Washington to discuss problems of mutual interest and to re-cement the cordiality between the two countries, which has sustained a series of severe shocks in recent years. Washington was interested in the hints but somewhat unresponsive.

Next, there appeared in Paris dispatches obviously inspired information that Premier Laval, following his visit to London and Berlin, might be persuaded to come to Washington in the interests of closer Franco-American relationship. These dispatches were so pointed, and so obviously inspired, that Washington could no longer ignore the hint. Consequently, ambassador Edge was instructed to convey to the French foreign office the intelligence that if M. Laval could find time to cross the Atlantic he would be assured of a cordial reception in Washington. The administration was quick to do little else under the circumstances.

To help pay the expenses of the visiting cadet corps the University of Pittsburgh has advanced the price of tickets for the Army game to $4.

Mrs. Ingram, aged mother of Mrs. Cherry Holmes, sustained internal injuries and a broken leg when the Holmes home was demolished. According to Holmes, the sale was from the southwest and lasted for more than a minute.

Damage was reported at the homes of William Twinn, Clarence Herring, Kyle Orris, and Tom Berdo, all northwest of Crawfordsville.

An unidentified man believed to be from Muscatine was seriously injured when his car was carried off highway 161 by the cyclone. He was taken to the Muscatine hospital.

KANSAS CITY—(INS)—Death and damage in widely scattered communities in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma was dealt late yesterday and last night by wind and lightning accompanying a heavy rainfall which broke the protracted September heat wave in the middle-west.

Damage totaling $10,000 was done by a tornado at Columbia, Mo., home of the State university. The damage was confined mostly to university buildings. Telephone and electric service was disrupted and one university student was injured. Lieut. Chauncey G. Yeoman and Lieut. Philip P. Brennan, national guard fliers of St. Louis, were killed instantly four miles east of Fulton, Mo., when their plane crashed into a clump of trees as they made a forced landing in the dark.

Two persons were killed and several injured by a windstorm in La-bette and Cherokee counties, Kas. Considerable property damage was done by the storm. The victims were Clinton McNickle, a farmer, and James Holt, 17, McNickle was injured fatally by a falling tree near the town of Hallowell, and Holt was killed when a grandstand at the county fairground here collapsed.

"The Treatment That Established a Record"

so, the reporter was told, the car was not driven very fast. Outposts On Duty Just outside of Wilton, where the dirt highway leaves route No. 32, a group of men was gathered. They were the outposts, stationed there to warn the larger congregation at the Lenker farm if more state men were on the way.

The road from the highway to the Lenker farm is mud, speckled with a capital "M" and in traversing it, Mr. Baker was forced to drive most of the way with his car in low gear. At that the car skidded about like a bar of soap on a tile floor.

"Here Comes Baker" Arriving at the Lenker farm, someone uttered a cry, "Here comes Baker." The cry was echoed among the groups of scattered farmers and within a short space of time they had flocked about the car until someone not acquainted with the situation might have thought the cattle testers had returned.

However, their purpose in gathering around the Franklin was far different than it would have been had the car been occupied by any of the lifters of the old cow's tail. With a half a dozen or so farmers talking all at once, efforts were made to secure an account of what had happened before the arrival of the party from Muscatine—for by that time the state employees had come and gone, all except Dr. Peter Malcolm, chief of the bureau of animal industry of the state of Iowa.

But the going, according to reports from the various farmers, was much different than their arrival. When they came to the farm their appearance was neat and well groomed, their 20 cars shiny and well polished—they left with clothing awry and their cars dented and splattered with mud.

Malcolm Loses Cane And at that Dr. Malcolm had considerable difficulty in getting away, and before he did, he relinquished some 75 to 100 canes which he had been carrying in the rear of his car.

For some unexplained reason Dr. Malcolm remained in the field about a block from the Lenker home on the opposite side of the road. He was discovered sitting in his automobile by someone who informed the rest of the farmers. Feeling in a playful mood the men who are furnishing opposition to the T. B. testing in Cedar county, decided to pay him a visit.

The right answer to Mark Thornburg, Iowa's secretary of agriculture, might have suffered violence had it not been for the fair minded farmers in the crowd.

Someone discovered the canes in the back of Dr. Malcolm's car and he was asked what they were for. "They belong to the state," the chief cow tail puncturer replied.

"Boys, let's get some of our taxes back," invited one of the farmers and straightaway he removed a cane from the car. Farmers flocked around the car like a litter of kittens around a saucer of milk and within a short time the gathering resembled the convalescence ward of an emergency hospital—every man who wanted a cane carrying one was trying to "borrow" his neighbors.

Shortly after that Dr. Malcolm decided to leave. But when he started to drive away he discovered that in driving in the field, perhaps, he had run over some sharp obstacle or obstacles, for all four tires on his car were as flat as the efforts to test cattle on the Lenker farm.

The last sign of the modern cow puncher he was parked along the muddy road, vainly trying to inflate his tires—a pathetic figure miles from his home and deserted on a lonely country road and with the sky becoming more and more overcast by rain clouds as night wore on.

As near as could be learned of the events happening at the Lenker farm—for the Cedar county farmers believe in doing plenty but saying little—the first hint of an attempt to test cattle was given about 8 p. m., Monday. Then some farmers, who happened to be going to Tipton, noticed an unusual number of men who appeared to be cattle testers, gathered at the junction of highway No. 1 and No. 32.

When anything like that is in the air, the farmers are a curious folk, so they watched the strangers. At about 10 a. m., the cattle testers drove into Tipton where until 2 p. m., they conferred with the board of supervisors behind closed doors. In the meantime the crowd of watchfully waiting farmers continued to grow.

Blockade attempted Shortly after 2 p. m., the testers started down the road. 220 farmers started following them. None of the farmers knew where they were headed and when the caravan again reached the intersection of highways No. 1 and No. 32, the testers, with two cars abreast and a third crossways of the road, attempted to block pursuit.

But long years of practice has enabled the farmers to drive their cars over all kinds of country roads, no matter what the weather, and the attempted blockade only caused the farmers to drive around the three machines and on down the highway as though nothing had happened.

The long string of cars continued on until they reached the Lenker farm. There, awaiting them was a truck upon which was a saddled pony, evidently intended to be used in rounding up the Lenker cattle. The pony, however, was never taken off the truck.

Leading into the Lenker barn yard is a driveway, upon one side of which is a high rock wall and the other a picket fence. The state employees thought it made an ideal spot to make their stand. As they massed into the narrow runway, the farmers bore down upon them.

Tear Gas Used In the ensuing melee someone, no one seemed to know who, touched off a gas bomb. The farmers felt the effects of it. One was rendered unconscious for a short time, another's eyes were burned with a possible permanent impairment to the sight, and a third was burned on the hand or had his hand injured in the following scuffle. It was the signal for action.

The farmers made a concerted rush, and now later the opposing forces. With farmers in front and farmers in back, a high stone wall on one side and a picket fence on the other, the state agents and veterinarians decided the open road looked pretty good. And it wasn't such an effort to get to their cars. They were given plenty of assistance by the farmers.

During the last big demonstration, when state agents swooped down upon a small crowd of farmers at the Curt Mitchell place near Tipton, they sought to hold the farmers back with drawn revolvers. These tactics were not resorted to Monday, although the farmers report that the automobiles in which the testers arrived at the farm were "loaded," with rifles, revolvers and ammunition.

While efforts were being made to learn what had happened Monday, Mr. Baker was busy taking pictures of the crowd, Mr. and Mrs. Lenker, the gas bomb which was used against the farmers and other subjects of interest. These will be developed and submitted to the farmers for their approval. If the farmers see no objection to their being printed, they will appear in the Free Press within a few days.

Opposition Still Strong The resistance to the present bovine testing system, when the calling together of crowds was resorted to, has now lasted nine months. Last January some 1,500 farmers gathered at the William Butterbrodt farm north of Tipton, and prevented the testers from completing the testing. Since that time the testers have been balked in half a dozen places.

A system which the farmers have of warning one another of where a test is liable to be attempted is simple in the extreme, but as effective as it is plain. Most of the farm telephones on anyone route are on one line. When anyone wishes to spread the alarm they ask the operator to give what is known as a "general" ring.

On each line, there is one man, and in many cases several, whose duty it is to warn his neighbors in case the cattle testers are in the vicinity. These men also cause the alarm to be given on other lines with a result such as was seen at the Lenker farm Monday.

sent a governor of Iowa," Miller continued. "With the filing of these petitions I have exhausted every means at my command toward a fair and peaceable settlement of this controversy. The responsibility for the present situation now rests squarely upon the governor and Secretary of Agriculture Mark Thornburg," Miller declared.

DEATH OF LAD WAS ACCIDENT, JURY DECIDES

Verdict Exonerates Driver Whose Car Killed Youth

That the death of Virgil Saxton, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Saxton, 212 Bridgeman street, was the result of an accident, was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury which conducted an inquest Monday afternoon at the Hoffman funeral home. The youth died Sunday evening after being struck that morning by an automobile driven by John Carlisle, 217 Bridgeman street, on Lucas street near the Church of the Brethren.

The jurors upon their oath, the full verdict of the jurors fold do say that Virgil Saxton came to his death at Hershey hospital, Muscatine, Ia., at about 9 o'clock p. m., September 20, 1931, as a result of being accidentally hit by an automobile driven by John Carlisle, on Lucas street, Muscatine, Ia., near the Hoffman grocery. Death was due to fracture of skull and hemorrhage of brain.

E. E. Wolfe, E. J. Zeldner and William Cochran were the jurors.

Father Testifies Those called to the stand were Dr. T. I. Wigim, who performed an operation upon the lad Sunday evening, Clarence Saxton, the boy's father, Fay Sharar, who passed the scene about the time of the accident, his daughter, Fern Sharar, and Carlisle.

The boy's father said that they had started out to the country in their automobile and had stopped across the street from the Church of the Brethren while the lad was to take a song book into the church. Virgil stood behind the Saxton automobile while an automobile driven by Fay Sharar, and another car which was following it passed. Then he started across the street, not noticing the one drive by Carlisle, which was coming in the opposite direction, the witness said. The lad was struck at a point almost opposite the Saxton machine, the boy's father testified.

Didn't See Lad In his testimony Mr. Carlisle said because of the approaching automobiles he was unable to see the lad in time to avoid hitting him. He was driving at a rate not faster than 20 miles an hour at the time, he said. The lad was struck by the front bumper of the Carlisle machine, the impact throwing him from his feet so that when he fell he had struck a corner of the front license plate, according to the witness.

Testimony showed that Carlisle immediately stopped his car and the lad and his father were taken to the hospital in the Saxton machine, which was driven by Mrs. Sharar. Funeral services for the lad will be held at 10 a. m., Wednesday morning from the Church of the Brethren, with the Rev. D. F. Landis, officiating. Burial will be in the Greenwood cemetery. The lad is survived by his parents and one brother, Rawlie.

read, "purchase of foreign exchange and transfer of funds with the object of acquiring such exchange directly or indirectly by British subjects or persons resident in the United Kingdom shall be prohibited except for the purpose of financing: 1—Normal trade requirements; 2—Contracts existing before September 21; 3—Reasonable traveling facilities and other personal purposes."

While the government was taking measures to ensure stability of the pound at its temporary revalorized figure, stock brokers in the financial district greeted the new situation with increasing optimism, amounting at times almost to gayer.

Dealers gathering outside the closed doors of the stock exchange in the Throgmorton street cheered, sang, joked and laughed, expecting a big boom in nominal security values when the exchange reopened to catch up with depreciation of the pound.

The old British cry of "are we downhearted?" voiced by a silk-hatted member of the street throng was taken up by a thousand voices which shouted "no!"

Brokers were flooded with purchasing orders to be put into effect when the market reopens, which may not be until next week. There was particular demand for iron and steel shares.
